The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore San says:
Some of the men who are contributing and demanding contributions for Roosevelt were at one time advocates of the nominalist of Judge Parker by the Democrats, and predicted that if he were nominated no would be clocked, as the business interests would not stand for Roosevelt. Every one of the whole group upon whom the Republicans now depend for success was until a few months ago most violent in expressions of hostility toward Roosevelt. GAMES TO-MORROW.

Triangular Series Among 1So--Called "Big Six" Elevens.

Called "Big Six" Elevens.

An odd feature of the foot-ball campaign of 1904 is the fact that to-morrow the so-called "Big Six" meet in a triangular contest. Harvard meets Peensylvania at Cambridge, Princeton faces Cornell at thines, and Yale lines up against Columbia in New York Such a coincidence of the schedules has addon, if ever, occurred. It was brought about by Harvard, when she moved the Pennsylvania game up a week. This unusual incident of the pigskin play makes to-morrow one of the most important dates of the fall by sunset the championship race will have been narrowed down considerably. The preliminary season of all the big teams has now come to a close, so that to-morrow will demonstrate pretty conclusively the strength of the various members of the "Big Six."

If Harvard defeats Pennsyvania, and there is reason to believe that she will, the championship aspirations of the Quakers will be snuffed out. In case the Tigers win from Cornell, that will end the hopes of the filace outers, but her game with Yale is her great contest, and she will try to nake the most of the Tibes wingles elseen so the will try to nake the most of the six college elseens naturally divide into or it.

The six college elevens naturally divide into two classes, an older trio composed of Harivard, Yale and Princeton, and a younger trio of Pennsylvania, Cornell and Columbia, in to-morrow's battles it is in each case the older institution against the younger.

What makes the day's play doubly important is that its contests furnish the only opportunity for each of the younger teams to try its prowess against an older. The champlonship precisations of Pennsylvania, Cornell and Columbia hang on the outcome of these battles.

Another characteristic of the games on to-morrow is that the first ful-time halves will be played, it is doubtful if Yale and Columbia will go to the time limit, but Harvard and Pennsylvania will; the same as to Princeton and Cornell.
